

COLONIAL REVIVAL

1905

Built in 1905, this Colonial Revival Bungalow has been modified to conceal its Colonial Revival characteristics. Wood shingle siding cover the exterior and a portion of its front porch. The hipped roof is accented with hipped dormers. The owner in 1956 enclosed part of the porch to enlarge the living room.

The original owner, Wilbur S. Reiley, was the owner and operator of Reiley's Printery.

CITY OF POMONA
Historic Resources Inventory
(Short Form - Exterior)

(1) Address: 376 E. Alvarado

(2) Neighborhood: Lincoln Park

(3) Property Category:

Single Family Residential ☒

Multi-Family Residential

Commerical

Industrial

Other

(4) Architectural Style (see attached sheet): TRANSITIONAL
Bungalow

(5) Estimated Construction Date (s): 1905

(6) Condition of Structure: Good

(7) Additions or Alterations: Few

Description: SHINGLE ADDED

(8) Other comments or observations:

(9) Rating: CM

(10) Evaluator: Steve & Bill

Date of Evaluation: July, 1992

Lincoln Park Historic District
Name of Property

Los Angeles, CA
County and State

NPS Form 10-900a
(Rev. 8/86)

OMB No. 1024-0018

United States Department of the Interior

National Park Service

National Register of Historic Places      Continuation Sheet No. 3

Section number 7      Narrative Description (Continued) Page 11

Historic Name:

Other Name:

Parcel Number: On same lot as 356 East Alvarado Street

Shiplap siding is used on this Craftsman Bungalow. Built in 1915, its rectangular shape is accented with double-hung windows. The front-facing gable roof is fronted with a matching gabled porch. Stucco covers the piers and solid porch railings while the porch is supported by square wooden columns. The first listed owners were Charles F. Dawson, who was a foreman at the Pomona Fruit Growers Exchange, and his wife, Frances, who was a bookkeeper at Pomona Valley Machine Works.

34. 371 East Alvarado Street (C) 1919

Historic Name:

Other Name:

Parcel Number: 8339-012-015

This single-story Craftsman Bungalow is topped with a side-facing gable roof with a center wing over the entryway. Covered with wide clapboard siding, the house features vertical lath ventwork, French windows, and sidelights flanking the wide front door. Round Colonial-style columns support the pergola which extends from each side of the centered porch. The original owner, Frank J. Wilson, was a bookkeeper at the Citrus Belt Milling Company.

35. 376 East Alvarado Street (C) 1905

Historic Name:

Other Name:

Parcel Number: 8336-001-016

Built in 1905, this Colonial Revival Bungalow has been modified to conceal its Colonial Revival characteristics. Wood shingle siding cover the exterior and a portion of its front porch. The hipped roof is accented with hipped dormers. The owner in 1956 enclosed part of the porch to enlarge the living room. The original owner, Wilbur S. Reiley, was the owner and operator of Reiley's Printery.

36. 378-386 East Alvarado Street (NC) 1956

Historic Name:

Other Name:

Parcel Number: 8336-004-020

This multi-family structure was built after the period of significance.

37. 381 East Alvarado Street (C) 1920

Historic Name:

Other Name:

Parcel Number: 8339-012-016

This Colonial Revival Bungalow, built in 1920, is clad in narrow clapboard siding. Its side-facing gable roof is accented in the center by two small gables. Colonial columns accent the small front porch whose railing is the same clapboard siding that covers the house. Part of the front porch has been enclosed. This small bungalow was enlarged by one bedroom and 3/4 bath in 1954. The original owner was Vernon G. Anderson and his wife, Pamilla. He was a physician at Pomona Valley Hospital.