

CALIFORNIA BUNGALOW

1921

This bungalow has the shallow gabled roof typical of this style. The main structure has a transverse gable while a front-facing gable covers the projection of the front on the left side. The front porch that fills in the L-shaped front elevation is only partially covered by the front eaves. This structure has some unusual features for a simple bungalow. The eaves are unusually wide, even for a Craftsman. There is an unusual cantilevered, neo-classical style, open pediment gabled portico sitting atop Baroque support brackets and a pair of French door style front windows add to an eclectic revival style.

The earliest recorded owners were Arthur L. and Margaret Davis (1926 city directory). Mr. Davis was a janitor.
