

City of Pomona Public Art Registry

Summer 2017

There are two versions of the City of Pomona's Public Art Registry. Both are now part of the Pomona Library Database. The first version is believed to have been compiled in the mid-1990's (mid 2006-2009 is also listed as the Cal Poly project date) by Cal Poly University as a student project. It is an extensive list of art and artifacts and more. It includes architecture, architectural appointments and detail such as bas-relief decoration, stained glass windows, fountains, commemorative monuments, (including cemetery grave site headstones and statuary), and various sculpture for plaques. Also included are commercial neon signage, painted murals incorporated into commercial signage, murals painted on park buildings, painted or mosaic tile murals produced on privately owned buildings in the Downtown Business and Arts District, as well as other outlying privately owned buildings throughout the City. This list was photographically recorded but with very little attribution or provenance assigned to artwork.

In the early 2000's as the Business District gave way to the Arts District the Cultural Arts Commission began adding newly produced public art to this list and began to focus on specifically Fine Art that existed in the City's holdings.

In 2011 the Cultural Arts Commission through the Pomona Public Library enlisted the assistance from the Claremont Graduate University's, (CGU), Executive Arts Management Program to update the Public Arts Registry. Project objectives were outlined in a contract that was signed between Anna Panoian, a CGU Arts Managements graduate student and Gregory Shapton, Director of the Pomona Public Library. The contract outline included: "finding missing data"... "systematizing the database by creating relevant categories and typologies of artwork"... "and recommending methods of utilizing its public art resources". Ms. Panoian's work is comprehensive and organizes an unwieldy list of artifacts into four basic categories and eliminates non-applicable items that were erroneously made part of the list. (Like non-art: flags, bookshelves and garden gnomes.)

The Pomona Public Library database lists the Public Art Collection as "in progress". When the collection is updated and installed it will become a working resource for listing and tracking City Public Fine Art assets.

The City of Pomona's Public Art Collection, (Public Art as defined by the Public Art Ordinance, Art in Public Places Manual, March 5, 2012, Part I sec. III, Pg., 6, Public Art), is organized into four categories:

1. The first category includes works of Public Art that are gifts to the City, and therefore owned by the City of Pomona, and for which the City has responsibilities of maintenance, repair and other liabilities. (See; APP and Guidelines Manual, Part 3, sec. II, A 2e, pg. 23, maintenance). Examples of Artwork in this category are:
 - 1). The Millard Sheets designed Second Street Mall Fountains, that include the fountains' sculptural and mosaic mural features, which were gifted to the City by Howard Ahmanson in 1962.
 - 2). Though listed as a "commemorative Monument", the 1922 World War One Memorial, (now located in Garfield Park), featuring the bronze sculpture by Burt Johnson, (better categorized as Fine Art Sculpture), is a one of a kind artwork, specifically created by a notable artist, commissioned by a Pomona civic group which dedicated the monument/sculpture, (as a gift), to the City of Pomona in 1923.

2. The second category includes works of Public Art for which an entity of the City of Pomona i.e.: The Cultural Arts Commission, Vehicle Parking District or Parks and Recreations, has commissioned and provided partial or full funding, either from the individual partnering entity's funds or from the Public Art Fund, and are part of a partnering program or project, which may involve multiple City entities, in which a contract, covenant, or partnership exists.

Note: This category often finds that there are overlapping contracts or agreements due to the participation of more than one City entity in a given project.

An example of some of these overlapping entities that have been involved in City wide arts projects are: the City's Cultural Art Commission, Pomona Unified School District, local artists and non-profit community arts organizations, Pomona Parks and Recs, the Pomona Vehicle Parking District and the Downtown Pomona Owners' Association. Works generated from these projects are found in City Hall, in public outside open spaces, like plazas and squares, and on and in City parks buildings.

Examples of artworks in this category are:

- 1.) The China Painted Porcelain Tile and Artist Mentor project. It entailed eight artworks which are viewable in three places within the City of Pomona. The project began with the Cultural Arts Commission's annual all High School watercolor contest in 2009. Eight High School contestant winners were chosen to work with volunteer artist/mentors to transform their watercolor designs into china painted porcelain mini murals. The mini murals have been installed in a Vehicle Parking District parking lot, along the Second Street sidewalk in the Pomona Art Colony, in a Pomona City Hall planter adjacent to Council Chambers and one at Philadelphia Park. Funding for the project began with the Cultural Arts Commission, which was augmented by donations from 3 China Painter artist organizations. Steel frame construction and installation was funded by the Vehicle Parking Dist., and the Pomona Parks and Recs. Dept. were involved in the installation of one of the mini murals in Philadelphia park.

- 2.) The Tree Carving project at Ganesha Park which culminated with 14 sculptures being carved from trees that had died in the park. The project involved a City council member who developed the project, a City park that received the artwork, donated funding from a local corporation (a major contribution from Fairplex). The project was reviewed by the Cultural Arts Commission and was approved by City Council, with oversight from Pomona's Planning Dept. and the Dept. of Public Works. Ultimately, the artwork generated from this project can be seen as a gift to the City via Parks and Recs., and therefore becomes City property along with maintenance, repair and liability responsibilities.

3. The third category includes works of art that have been produced through the City of Pomona's Art in Public Places program which regulates the Public Art Requirements for Private Development. These artworks are not owned by the City, but the development and the City's oversight of these works of art is outlined in the Arts in Public Places Policy and Guidelines Manual, Part 2 pgs.19-21, XII-XIV Budget, under Contracts and Property Owner's Responsibilities.

An example of this category is:

- 1.) The Bonita Village Condo's entryway china painted porcelain tile and mosaic mural and Pool entryway mosaic mural at 860 E. Bonita Ave., Pomona Ca. These two murals are part of the Art in Public Places Public Art Requirement for Private Development program and is the second project to be completed under this program.

4. The fourth category includes painted or glass/ceramic tile, mosaic "Original Fine Art Murals" that are listed as being compliant or "conforming" as outlined in the AAP ordinance No. 4151 sec..5809-25 covering "Original Fine Art Murals. Also included are Fine Art Sculpture and other publicly viewable works of art, located on private property. The City's oversight of these artworks is primarily concerned with code enforcement issues.

An example of this category is:

- 1.) The 80'x 16' mural by Chuy Vasquez at 269 N. Park Ave., Pomona Ca., entitled " The Appearance of the Vergin", painted in acrylic in 1999.

Note: Some of these works of art, mostly painted murals, run into a gray area in terms of their qualification as "Conforming Original Artwork Murals" Some tread a fine line between "art" and "signage", but at the same time also reflect the current genre of "Hip-Hop" or "Street Art" and should bear some consideration as artwork worthy of preservation in its own category.

Respectfully,

Chris Toovey
