DISCUSSION: 34 minutes (9:27 p.m. to 10:01 p.m.)

Britney Gallivan stated that the CEQA fee is not mentioned in the city's Mills Act Program documents. She expressed in the past applicants did not pay a CEQA fee. She said other cities do not charge a CEQA fee for participating in the Mills Act Program. She mentioned that the mills act work complies with the rules and regulation of the State Office of Historic Preservation of the Department of Parks and Recreation, U.S. Secretary Interior Standards Rehabilitation and the State Historic Building Code. She expressed that the Mills Act Program is intended to promote the rehabilitation and maintenance of historic properties. She said the application should not be included, as part of the project and it does not require discretionary approval by multiple government agencies. She mentioned that there is no reason that an application participate in a tax mitigation program should be classified as a Major Certificate of Appropriateness and require any CEQA fees because it is not affecting the environment. She expressed that the city does not understand the CEQA fee or how it should be applied.

William Crisafi stated that they both have done a lot of research and communicated with the agencies Britney mentioned and confirmed it is an inappropriate application of CEQA law. He expressed there are no discretionary actions involved in a mills act application and it is purely ministerial and it only becomes discretionary when it goes to city council or any other government agency. He said the CEQA fee is not disclosed in any documentation and part way through the process there is a non-refundable fee. He mentioned that the city should have talked to its legal department prior to adopting the CEQA fee. He expressed that the city should

Colin Beck mentioned that he has submitted a mills act application this year. He stated that he wrote to the state office and the response from the state was that it should be exempt from CEQA because the work will have less than a significant impact on the historical resources. He said he does not have a problem with the city charging a fee; however, the CEQA fee should have been included in the application form.

Dan McIntire said that when the preservation community was lobbying for the mills act to be adopted in the City of Pomona it never came up at the time. He expressed he cannot think of one project that has ever been approved by a minor and major that has had any adverse impact on the environment. He believes it is a deterrent to people when applying for a COA and the Mills Act.
